Introducing...

AS Level History A (from September 2015)

Our AS Level History A specification provides a fantastic curriculum for your students to ignite and engage their passions and interests. We've never thought that there's any one 'correct' approach to History as a subject. It's too valuable and simply too massive to be limited to a mere handful of approved options. As there is no core content in History, our vision is to allow you to have as much professional freedom as possible to approach the subject in your chosen valid way.

This means your students will:

- Study the history of more than one country or state in addition to the study of British history
- Undertake a thematic study, covering an extended period of history of approximately 100 years
- Explore a topic in history they have an interest in through the coursework element.

Our aim is to create independent learners, critical thinkers and decision-makers – all personal assets that can make them stand out as they progress to higher education and/or the workplace.

Meet the team

We have a dedicated team of people working on our AS Level History qualifications.

Teaching and learning resources

We recognise that the introduction of a new specification can bring challenges for implementation and teaching. Our aim is to help you at every stage and we're working hard to provide a practical package of support in close consultation with teachers and other experts, so we can help you to make the change.

Designed to support progression for all

Our resources are designed to provide you with a range of teaching activities and suggestions so you can select the best approach for your particular students. You are the experts on how your students learn and our aim is to support you in the best way we can.

We want to...

- Support you with a body of knowledge that grows throughout the lifetime of the specification
- Provide you with a range of suggestions so you can select the best activity, approach or context for your particular students
- Make it easier for you to explore and interact with our resource materials, in particular to develop your own schemes of work
- Create an ongoing conversation so we can develop materials that work for you.

Plenty of useful resources

You'll have four main types of subject-specific teaching and learning resources at your fingertips:

- Delivery Guides
- Transition Guides
- Topic Exploration Packs
- Lesson elements.

Along with subject-specific resources, you'll also have access to a selection of generic resources that focus on skills development and professional guidance for teachers.

Skills Guides – we've produced a set of Skills Guides that are not specific to History, but each covers a topic that could be relevant to a range of qualifications – for example, communication, legislation and research. Download the guides at ocr.org.uk/skillsguides.

Active Results – a free online results analysis service to help you review the performance of individual students or your whole school. It provides access to detailed results data, enabling more comprehensive analysis of results in order to give you a more accurate measurement of the achievements of your centre and individual students. For more details refer to ocr.org.uk/activeresults.

Professional Development

Take advantage of our improved Professional Development Programme, designed with you in mind. Whether you want to come to face-to-face events, look at our new digital training or search for training materials, you can find what you're looking for all in one place at the CPD Hub.

1b. Why choose an OCR AS Level in History A?

OCR AS Level in History A consists of two externally assessed units, each with a wide and attractive range of content options.

It is our strong desire to ensure that OCR History should captivate the learner and develop a desire within them to continue learning beyond the confines of the classroom.

OCR's AS Level in History A provides a fantastic curriculum to ignite and engage learners' passions and interests. Our content will create independent learners, critical thinkers and decision-makers. These personal skills will make them stand out as they progress to higher education and/or the workplace.

OCR have never thought that there is any one 'correct' approach to history as a subject. History is too valuable, and simply too massive – not to mention too controversial – to be limited to a mere handful of approved options. There is no core content in history, and our view is that the logical extension of this is that teachers should have as much professional freedom as possible to approach the subject in their chosen valid way. This specification provides that freedom.

Centres should have the opportunity to deliver the history of pre-colonial non-western civilisations and peoples, for example, as well as British and European history, and should be able to do so with confidence, and so topics are included to encourage centres to look beyond the most commonly taught areas of history.

OCR's AS Level in History A has been designed to emphasise knowledge and argument, and to encompass a large range of traditional and new optional topics.

- research – a key aspect of any history course is to develop research skills
- independence – being able to work on your own to complete tasks
- analysis – any historian must be able to take and understand information before applying it to solve a puzzle
- communication – the ability to discuss key issues verbally and written down is vital to any future success. Historians use this skill daily and so university and employers will value someone who can articulate their thoughts and those of the business in a clear and professional way
- time management – the skill of prioritising work is very important. By working through the questions, an AS level Historian will have effectively developed this
- ICT – historians will develop their skills in history, from using simple word processors through to scouring the web for that vital piece of information that an essay just can't do without
- working with others – history can help develop this through class room activities
- problem-solving – history is full of problems that need solving, the skills used to solve historical conundrums are the same as those used to solve real life issues
- planning and organising – history teaches learners how to plan effectively to complete any tasks
- drive and determination – any successful AS level learner will have shown the drive and determination to succeed in gaining knowledge and acquiring skills.

1c. What are the key features of this specification?

Here are some of the key features of OCR's AS Level in History A for you and your learners:

- a straightforward specification with detailed guidance to support delivery
- a wide range of content options to meet your centre's expertise, maximising your opportunity to create the most appropriate course for you and your students

2b. Content of AS Level in History A (H105)

OCR's AS Level in History A will encourage learners to:

- develop their interest in and enthusiasm for history and an understanding of its intrinsic value and significance
- acquire an understanding of different identities within society and an appreciation of aspects such as social, cultural, religious and ethnic diversity, as appropriate
- build on their understanding of the past through experiencing a broad and balanced course of study
- improve as effective and independent learners and as critical and reflective thinkers with curious and enquiring minds
- develop the ability to ask relevant and significant questions about the past and to research them
- acquire an understanding of the nature of historical study, for example that history is concerned with judgements based on available evidence and that historical judgements are provisional
- develop their use and understanding of historical terms, concepts and skills
- make links and draw comparisons within and/or across different periods and aspects of the past
- organise and communicate their historical knowledge and understanding in different ways, arguing a case and reaching substantiated judgement.

In AS History A learners must take one unit from unit group 1 and one unit from unit group 2. There are no prohibited combinations at AS Level. Restrictions will apply at A Level, and so unit choice at AS may have implications for those studying this qualification in one year and then continuing in their second year of study in order to complete an A Level. In order to check valid combinations at A Level, centres must use the Specification Creator tool on the OCR website. Use of the Specification Creator tool before learners begin to study the A Level course is mandatory in order to ensure that the rules of combination are met.

Ensuring course coherence

Centres have a free choice over how to combine units in order to maximise the potential to exploit interest, expertise and resources. Coherence can be achieved in different ways, but is guaranteed by the nature of the two different units, the different emphases and approaches and content which collectively engender an understanding of the nature and purpose of history as a discipline:

- in unit group 1 a source-based enquiry either sets up or concludes a period study, developing different approaches, but collectively constituting a substantial and coherent element of English or British History
- in unit group 2 non-British History is studied, with an emphasis on use of knowledge and understanding and judgement. This part of the course also introduces learners to historical interpretations and ensures that they will become used to analysing and evaluating different views of the past.

The qualification can be constructed through associations including, but not limited to, those based on chronology, theme (e.g. warfare, religion, conquest/expansion, empire, rebellion/unrest, nation building), geography or diversity.

All units must be taken in the same series as 100% terminal rule applies.

The following pages list the units available in each unit group.

Learners must choose one unit from each unit group.

2c. Content of unit group 1: British period study and enquiry (Units Y136, Y137, Y138, Y143)

Introduction to unit group 1: British period study and enquiry

Centres should choose one unit from the twelve available in unit group 1.

Each unit has two elements: a Period Study and an Enquiry. The Enquiry element either precedes or continues the Period Study element so as to provide increased coherence and coverage of the chosen period of British history.

The Period Study element of the unit group is assessed by essays, which will allow learners to develop their use and understanding of historical terms, concepts and skills. The length of the periods studied will encourage learners to develop their interest in, and understanding of, important developments. The topics available in the unit in this group will also enable learners to ask significant questions about important issues. They are sufficiently broad and balanced to ensure both coherence and variety and have sufficient chronological range to provide for the study of continuity and change, which allows analysis of causes and consequences within the periods.

The addition of the Enquiry element to either the beginning or end of the period will ensure that learners do not have a borehole approach to their study, but will be able to see change and developments, and make substantiated judgements, over a substantial length of time, so that they can see issues in a wider perspective. The Enquiry topic areas include the study of significant individuals, societies, events and issues. They also include a range of different historical perspectives, for example aesthetic, cultural, economic, ethnic, political, religious, scientific, social and technological.

The nature of the examination will require learners to demonstrate an understanding of the key historical terms and concepts relevant to the period studied. The questions relating to the Period Study element will require learners to recall, select and deploy appropriate knowledge and communicate this clearly and effectively. Learners will be expected to demonstrate abilities to explain, assess, analyse and consider the relationships between key features of the period studied in order to reach substantiated judgements.

In the Enquiry element, the focus will be on the critical use of evidence in investigating and assessing historical questions, problems and issues. The link with the Period Study will make it easier for teachers to provide the historical background, context and awareness of how their unit is located within the longer term developments of the topic. The focus of the questions may be on depth of one Key topic or breadth, using parts of several key topics for the evaluation of a theme. Each Enquiry topic is of sufficient length to provide a coherent and worthwhile study within the overall period. Each provides a range of perspectives affecting individuals, societies and groups and will enable learners to analyse and evaluate different interpretations and representations of the past through contemporary perspectives. The critical evaluation of sources will be central to this element, with all marks awarded against AO2.

The sources selected for examination will be a range of types of written sources, contemporary to the period. Learners will always have to analyse and evaluate three sources, answering both questions which set the sources in their historical context. The complexity of this task thus represents differentiation from A level, where more sources are analysed and longer-answer questions are set. Sources will be fully attributed, and only edited for accessibility. Learners' knowledge of the historical context will only be credited in so far as it is used to analyse and evaluate the sources in relation to the question set.

2c. Content of unit group 2: Non-British period study (Units Y243, Y249, Y251, Y252, Y253)

Introduction to unit group 2: Non-British period study

Centres should choose one unit from the seventeen available in unit group 2.

The periods of non-British study will have the same number of Key Topics as for the British Period Study element, but there is no associated Enquiry element.

The assessment of this unit group will be in two sections. For section A, learners will be required to answer one traditional 'Period Study' essay (as in a unit group 1) from a choice of two. For section B, learners will answer one question which will require them to assess the strengths and limitations of a historian's interpretation related to the key issues that have been specified as AS Interpretations topics.

The length of the periods studied within this unit group will encourage learners to develop their interest in, and understanding of, important developments. They will also enable learners to ask significant questions about important issues. They are sufficiently broad and balanced to ensure both coherence and variety. The units have sufficient chronological range to provide for the study of continuity and change, which will allow the development of the Key Topics and for the analysis of cause and consequences within the periods. The length of periods studied will prevent a borehole approach to their study and learners will be able to see change and developments, and make substantiated judgements, over substantial lengths of time, so that they can see issues in a wider perspective. The Topic areas include the study of significant individuals, societies, events and issues. They also include a range of different historical perspectives, for example aesthetic, cultural, economic, ethnic, political, religious, scientific, social and technological.

Centres will also be able to choose, should they desire, a non-European period from the same time period as their British Topic and this will also allow a broad understanding of the period in a wider context.

The nature of the examination will require learners to demonstrate an understanding of the key historical terms and concepts relevant to the period studied. The questions will require learners to recall, select and deploy appropriate knowledge and communicate this clearly and effectively. Learners will be expected to demonstrate abilities to explain, assess, analyse and consider the relationships between key features of the period studied in order to reach substantiated judgements.

Unlike for the A Level version of this unit group, for the AS examination learners will be set an additional question dealing with historians' interpretations. Two of four key topics for each option are identified for this purpose, and learners should be familiar with different interpretations of these topics, and able to use their knowledge to evaluate them. The interpretations set will be quotations (usually 1 to 2 sentences in length) from historians, and will be fully attributed with the publication title and date. They will only be edited for accessibility of language. Knowledge of the historical context and the wider historical debate should be used to analyse the interpretation and to evaluate its strengths and weaknesses. The skills and techniques for this section of the examination can either be integrated into the delivery of this unit (they will be good preparation for candidates going on to enter for A Level), or they can be taught for AS only candidates at the end of the programme of study, by revisiting the relevant key topics.

2d. Prior learning and progression

No prior knowledge of the subject is required. The specification builds on, but does not depend on, the knowledge, understanding and skills specified for GCSE History.

2 Learners in England who are beginning an AS course are likely to have followed a Key Stage 4 programme of study. This course will enable learners to progress to A level courses or combine it with vocational qualifications or progress directly to employment.

OCR's AS level in History A provides progression to A Level. A level examinations are available on the content from the two AS unit groups, meaning that the qualification is co-teachable with A level. The additional unit group 2 historical interpretations question is good preparation for work at a higher level as part of a history A level. At the same time, it also offers a worthwhile course of study for learners who do not wish to progress further in the subject. The various skills required by the specification provide opportunities for progression directly into employment.

3 Assessment of OCR AS Level in History A

3a. Forms of assessment

Unit group 1: British period study and enquiry

1 hour 30 minutes examination in two sections:

For Section A, learners answer two compulsory source-based questions, worth a total of 30 marks, on three sources related to a key topic from the Enquiry element of their chosen unit.

For Section B, learners answer one essay question on the Period Study element. This is worth 20 marks.

Unit group 2: Non-British period study

1 hour 30 minutes examination.

Learners will answer two compulsory questions:

The first is an essay worth 30 marks (candidates answer one question from a choice of two).

The second question is worth 20 marks and requires use of knowledge to evaluate a historians' interpretation of one of the key topics specified for the unit they have studied.

3b. Assessment objectives (AOs)

There are three assessment objectives in OCR's AS Level in History A. These are detailed in the table below.

Learners are expected to demonstrate their ability to:

	Assessment Objective
AO1	Demonstrate, organise and communicate knowledge and understanding to analyse and evaluate the key features related to the periods studied, making substantiated judgements and exploring concepts, as relevant, of cause, consequence, change, continuity, similarity, difference and significance.
AO2	Analyse and evaluate appropriate source materials, primary and/or contemporary to the period, within its historical context.
AO3	Analyse and evaluate, in relation to the historical context, different ways in which aspects of the past have been interpreted.

AO weightings in AS Level in History A

The relationship between the assessment objectives and the unit groups is shown in the following table:

Component	% of AS Level
	AO1	AO2	AO3	Total
British period study and enquiry (Unit group 1) (Units Y136, Y137, Y138, Y143)	20%	30%		50%
Non-British period study (Unit group 2) (Units Y243, Y249, Y251, Y252, Y253)	30%		20%	50%
	50%	30%	20%	100%

3c. Assessment availability

There will be one examination series available each year in May/June to all learners. This specification will be certified from the June 2016 examination series onwards.

3d. Retaking the qualification

Learners can retake the qualification as many times as they wish. They retake all components of the qualification.

3e. Assessment of extended response

The assessment materials for this qualification provide learners with the opportunity to demonstrate their ability to construct and develop a sustained line of reasoning and marks for extended responses are integrated into the marking criteria. All externally assessed units include the assessment of extended responses.

3f. Synoptic assessment

Synoptic assessment allows learners to demonstrate their understanding between different aspects of the subject. Synoptic assessment involves the explicit drawing together of knowledge, skills and understanding of different aspects of the AS level course. The emphasis of synoptic assessment is to encourage the understanding of History as a discipline. Synoptic assessment tests the learners' understanding of the connections between different elements of the subject.

Synoptic learning is a feature of the AS qualification. Synoptic learning can be demonstrated through testing the learners' understanding of the connections between different elements of the subject. Each unit requires the drawing together of different elements of knowledge and understanding about different aspects of the periods studied to reach conclusions involving the analysis and evaluation of sources or interpretations. The skills of making historical links and thinking as an historian are common to both units that the learners will complete. Therefore the approach and skill set that each unit fosters will be drawn upon in the other unit taken, even though the specified content is different.

3g. Calculating qualification results

A learner's overall qualification grade for AS level in History A will be calculated by adding together their marks from the two units taken to give their total weighted mark. This mark will then be compared to the qualification level grade boundaries that apply for the combination of units taken by the learner and for the relevant exam series to determine the learner's overall qualification grade.

4 Admin: what you need to know

The information in this section is designed to give an overview of the processes involved in administering this qualification so that you can speak to your exams officer. All of the following processes require you to submit something to OCR by a specific deadline.

More information about the processes and deadlines involved at each stage of the assessment cycle can be found in the Administration area of the OCR website.

OCR's Admin overview is available on the OCR website at <http://www.ocr.org.uk/administration>.

4a. Pre-assessment

Estimated entries

Estimated entries are your best projection of the number of learners who will be entered for a unit or qualification in a particular series. Estimated entries should be submitted to OCR by the specified deadline.

They are free and do not commit your centre in any way.

Final entries

Final entries provide OCR with detailed data for each learner, showing each assessment to be taken. It is essential that you use the correct entry code, considering the relevant entry rules.

Final entries must be submitted to OCR by the published deadlines or late entry fees will apply.

All learners taking AS level History A must be entered for certification code H105.

All learners must also be entered for the two units they are taking using the relevant unit entry codes.

Unit entry codes for all units are given in the tables in section 2b.

4b. Accessibility and special consideration

Reasonable adjustments and access arrangements allow learners with special educational needs, disabilities or temporary injuries to access the assessment and show what they know and can do, without changing the demands of the assessment. Applications for these should be made before the examination series. Detailed information about eligibility for access arrangements can be found in the JCQ Access Arrangements and Reasonable Adjustments.

Special consideration is a post-assessment adjustment to marks or grades to reflect temporary injury, illness or other indisposition at the time the assessment was taken.

Detailed information about eligibility for special consideration can be found in the JCQ A guide to the special consideration process.

4c. External assessment arrangements

Regulations governing examination arrangements are contained in the JCQ publication Instructions for conducting examinations. Learners are permitted to use a scientific or graphical calculator for both components. Calculators are subject to the rules in the document Instructions for Conducting Examinations published annually by JCQ (www.jcq.co.uk).

Head of Centre Annual Declaration

The Head of Centre is required to provide a declaration to the JCQ as part of the annual NCN update, conducted in the autumn term, to confirm that the centre is meeting all of the requirements detailed in the specification.

Any failure by a centre to provide the Head of Centre Annual Declaration will result in your centre status being suspended and could lead to the withdrawal of our approval for you to operate as a centre.

Private Candidates

Private candidates may enter for OCR assessments.

A private candidate is someone who pursues a course of study independently but takes an examination or assessment at an approved examination centre.

A private candidate may be a part-time student, someone taking a distance learning course, or someone being tutored privately. They must be based in the UK.

Private candidates need to contact OCR approved centres to establish whether they are prepared to host them as a private candidate. The centre may charge for this facility and OCR recommends that the arrangement is made early in the course.

Further guidance for private candidates may be found on the OCR website: <http://www.ocr.org.uk>

4d. Results and certificates

Grade scale

Advanced Subsidiary qualifications are graded on the scale: A, B, C, D, E, where A is the highest. Learners who fail to reach the minimum standard for E will be Unclassified (U). Only subjects in which grades A to E are attained will be recorded on certificates.

Units are graded on the scale a, b, c, d, e, where a is the highest. Learners who fail to reach the minimum standard for e will be unclassified (u). Unit results will not be recorded on certificates.

Results

Results are released to centres and learners for information and to allow any queries to be resolved before certificates are issued.

Centres will have access to the following results' information for each learner:

- the grade for the qualification
- the raw mark and grade for each unit
- the total weighted mark for the qualification.

The following supporting information will be available:

- raw mark grade boundaries for each unit
- weighted mark grade boundaries for the combinations of units taken by their candidates.

Until certificates are issued, results are deemed to be provisional and may be subject to amendment. A learner's final results will be recorded on an OCR certificate.

The qualification title will be shown on the certificate as 'OCR Level 3 Advanced Subsidiary GCE in History A'.

4e. Post-results services

A number of post-results services are available:

- Enquiries about results – If you are not happy with the outcome of a learner's results, centres may submit an enquiry about results.
- Missing and incomplete results – This service should be used if an individual subject result for a learner is missing, or the learner has been omitted entirely from the results supplied.

- Access to scripts – Centres can request access to marked scripts.

4f. Malpractice

Any breach of the regulations for the conduct of examinations and non exam assessment may constitute malpractice (which includes maladministration) and must be reported to OCR as soon as it is detected. Detailed information on malpractice can be found in the JCQ Suspected Malpractice in Examinations and Assessments: Policies and Procedures.

5 Appendices

5a. Overlap with other qualifications

There is no overlap with any other qualifications.

5b. Avoidance of bias

The AS level qualification and subject criteria have been reviewed in order to identify any feature which could disadvantage learners who share a protected

Characteristic as defined by the Equality Act 2010. All reasonable steps have been taken to minimise any such disadvantage.
