

Qualification title:	OCR Entry Level Award in Digital Employability (Entry 3)
Qualification number:	601/6297/1
An overview of this qualification	The OCR Entry Level Award in Digital Employability (Entry 3) is a skills based qualification, which aims to give you the IT knowledge and skills needed for entry into employment, life and learning. You will learn about different digital devices such as computers, laptops, touch-screen tablets and smart phones. You will build confidence using these devices to do the tasks that are needed in a job and life in general. You will need to complete 4 units to get this qualification. Everybody will study a unit on knowing the basics of using digital technologies where you will learn: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• about the everyday uses of the internet</li> <li>• how information is kept there and how you can find information</li> <li>• that there are safe and unsafe ways of using the internet</li> <li>• how to stay safe online</li> <li>• how to keep information secure and to create and use passwords to protect yourself and information.</li> </ul> Your knowledge will be assessed by completing a 30-minute test taken on a computer. What you learn in the unit ‘knowing the basics of using digital technologies’ will then be put into practise as you complete the other units. You must choose three more units from the six topics listed below. You will be able to use any digital device such as a PC, a laptop or a tablet to develop your skills in these units. Organising files and folders - You will learn about different file types. You will learn that information needs to be stored as a file and that lots of files can be organised into folders. You will learn the skills to file different types of information (such as text and images), to set up folders. Producing documents - This unit will give you the skills to bring together different types of information such as texts and images from different places into one document and layout it out in a letter or a poster in a way that employers would expect so that it looks professional. To help you do this you will learn to use software features for laying out information into a document, for example, editing, amending and formatting. You will also be able to set up documents using already prepared templates. Processing data - You will learn to enter data, use a function to do calculations and create charts. You will be able to prepare spreadsheets for printing by checking that they are correct to display information and use printers as instructed.

	Working with graphics - You will show that you can change images and text to create graphics following instructions provided. You will be able to prepare graphics for printing by checking that they are correct, display information and use printers as instructed. Finding information - You will practise finding information from the internet. You will also learn how to complete forms on the Internet. Sending emails - You will learn how to create and organise emails and attach documents to them. You will also learn how to create contacts and use them to send and reply to emails. The learning is presented in bite-sized units focusing on specific skills areas. This will enable you to have a focus to your learning and provide opportunities to practise skills prior to the assessments. You will be assessed by demonstrating your skills and knowledge through completing structured tasks provided by OCR. The tasks will be a realistic example of the sorts of tasks that you would complete in the workplace.
