

Switching to OCR from AQA

Introduction

Our new AS and A Level Art and Design qualifications have received great feedback from teachers who love the structure and straightforwardness of the new course.

Why choose OCR's Art and Design?

More choice – our AS and A Level courses offer seven specialist routes for you and your learners to choose from. From Fine Art to Architecture and Games design to Contextual Studies there's an option to suit everybody.

Greater flexibility – whatever specialism they have chosen our 'framework' approach where centres can design and develop courses appropriate to their own learners is broad enough in design to allow flexibility in terms of delivery.

Encourages creativity – the structure of our one component AS Level allows learners to develop their creativity without the pressure of portfolio assessment.

Straightforward assessment – our easy to use mark scheme doesn't require the use of scaling factors.

Key differences

OCR Art and Design	AQA Art and Design
Choice of seven specialisms at both AS and A Level including Critical and Contextual Studies .	Choice of six specialisms at AS and A Level.
AS level Our one component AS Level gives freedom for teachers and learners from pressure.	AS level Restricted by course structure pressure from the assessment of two components. *Note, the AS qualification is intended to be withdrawn (final assessment Summer 2021).
AS and A Level Our straightforward marking structure doesn't use scaling factors making it easier to analyse learners' results. The total mark allocation creates an even weight distribution. AS Level Portfolio 80 marks = 100% A Level Portfolio 120 marks = 60% External task 80 marks = 40%	AS and A Level Scaling factors applied to the component marks, meaning individual marks have a different weighting depending on which component they relate to. This is in order to generate the 60% - 40% weighting distribution. Component 1 is multiplied by a factor x 3. Component 2 is multiplied by a factor x 2. This makes analysis of your learners' results more complicated.
