TAYLOR WIMPEY plc (TWP)

Taylor Wimpey plc (TWP) is one of the UK's largest house builders, building houses all across the UK. The homes are sold under the following brand names: Taylor Wimpey, George Wimpey and Bryant Homes.

TWP is organised in a different way to some other plcs and it is divided into 23 separate regional businesses in the UK. This means that TWP can operate as a local builder within each of its markets. Each regional business builds a range of products, from one bedroom apartments to large family houses. 5

The main long term objective of TWP is to provide increased dividends for its shareholders, but this does not mean that other stakeholders are neglected. TWP regards itself as an ethical company. Every individual regional business is responsible for its own sponsorship and community support programmes, developed to meet local needs. Examples of support for local communities include charitable initiatives, and giving funds to further education colleges for training in construction skills. 10

There is also a strong commitment to staff. TWP wants to attract and retain employees of the highest quality and aims to be a company for which people want to work. There is the opportunity for all employees to participate in training and development. Customer satisfaction is very important when making an expensive purchase such as a house or an apartment, so there is also a commitment to customer needs and the quality of the homes. 15

However, like any business, TWP faces difficulties. Firstly, operating as 23 separate regional businesses can cause managerial problems. Secondly, the nature of TWP's market means that it could suffer from cash-flow problems. Finally, it is very important to forecast the demand for each type of home correctly so as to avoid an excess supply of unsold properties. Market research, therefore, is essential. Thus the monitoring of demographics and other social trends is very important to TWP. 20
