Advice Guide No. 4 - Travel Insurance

Why do you need it?

The main reason why it is sensible to take out travel insurance is so you can get compensation* for any of the following:

- having to cancel or cut short your trip for reasons outside your control (e.g., unexpected illness of you or a close family member)
- medical and other emergency expenses
- personal injury or death
- lost, stolen or damaged property - including luggage
- accidental damage to property or injury you cause to someone else.

(* subject to payment of an excess)

You should take out travel insurance as soon as you book a trip as this is likely to cover you for cancellation. You are free to make your own insurance arrangements so you do not have to take out any insurance offered to you when you book your trip or holiday. If a travel agent insists on this, they are breaking the law. It is sensible to shop around and compare costs for the best deal.

What should you look out for?

There are certain things you should check before buying travel insurance.

- Do any age limits apply?
- Are there any exclusions? (Eg some do not include dangerous activities such as skiing.)
- Is there an ‘excess’ – an amount you have to pay towards the cost of any claim?
- Are there any conditions attached? (Eg how long does a travel delay have to be before compensation will be paid.)
- Does your existing household insurance already cover you for loss or damage to belongings while you are abroad?
- Does your credit card include some free insurance when you use it to pay for a trip or holiday?

...and finally!

When you do purchase travel insurance you must tell the insurer about anything which may affect their decision to insure you. This could be, for example, an existing medical condition. If you do not tell them, it could result in any subsequent claim being rejected. When you do travel, make sure you always take your insurance policy with you. If you have to make a claim, then do so as soon as you return to this country.

All About the E111 / EHIC

Here are some important details about the E111 European Health Insurance Card (EHIC).

If you are a UK resident and have an EHIC, you are entitled to emergency medical treatment, at reduced cost or sometimes free, when you are visiting most European countries.

What is Covered?

The EHIC covers you for any medical treatment that becomes necessary because of illness or an accident whilst you are in an EU country. You may have to make some contribution to the cost of your care but you may be able to claim some or all of this money back when you return to the UK. The EHIC will also cover treatment for any pre-existing illness you may have – indeed you will be treated on the same basis as a resident of the country you are visiting.

You need to be aware, however, that an EHIC will not cover the cost of bringing you back to the UK, or of services that are not part of the host country’s healthcare system. It is, therefore, not a replacement for private travel insurance, which should be taken out in addition to carrying an EHIC.

Who is Covered?

You must be over 16 to apply for an EHIC and the only information required is your name, date of birth and NHS or National Insurance number. Parents/carers can apply for an EHIC for children up to the age of 16 (or 19 if they are in full-time education).

How do I Apply?

To obtain your own EHIC, simply go to www.ehic.org.uk or get an application form from your local Post Office.
Is Travel Insurance a ‘rip-off’?

We have received numerous responses to our article last week about travel insurance. Here are just a few of the comments you have made.

My partner and I have just returned from a fortnight’s skiing holiday in France. We took out travel insurance offered by the travel agent and when my partner slipped and broke her ankle we assumed all medical costs would be covered. How wrong we were! The small print excluded winter sports – something the travel agent never pointed out. Nor did he mention the E111 form, which I’ve never heard of and which would at least have covered some of the costs we incurred. The moral of my story is never trust travel agents when it comes to insurance and always read the small print. Alternatively, don’t bother with insurance!

Eddie

What’s all the fuss about travel insurance? If you are going to travel in Europe, take out a year’s cover (it’s cheaper), make sure the excesses are reasonable (I usually go for an excess of £100 maximum on all eventualities) and always have your E111 card with you (it’s free). You can always decide not to take out insurance but you may live to regret it if the worst happens.

Sandji

My son went hiking in Austria this summer and unfortunately contracted a nasty virus. He had to spend four days in a hospital and was so poorly that my husband and I had to travel to Salzburg and bring him home. On my insistence, my son had taken out an expensive travel insurance package, so all medical and travel costs were covered and we only had to pay the excess of £150 on the hospital fees. Although he had an E111 card, I think this only covered him for medication in Austria and not for medical treatment. Some people seem to be suggesting that travel insurance is a luxury you can do without. What nonsense!

Moira

Travel insurance is unnecessary when travelling in Europe. Statistically how many of us get ill or have serious accidents on holiday? Answer - very few. Is it expensive to get medical treatment abroad? Answer - most EU countries have a system similar to the NHS and your E111 card will cover most costs. But don’t some people lose things and have money stolen abroad? Answer - yes, of course, but most people can actually claim these losses on their normal household insurance. Is the insurance industry making a massive profit from the premiums they charge for travel insurance and insisting on large excesses? Answer - you bet they are!
