Mark Scheme for June 2013

OCR (Oxford Cambridge and RSA) is a leading UK awarding body, providing a wide range of qualifications to meet the needs of candidates of all ages and abilities. OCR qualifications include AS/A Levels, Diplomas, GCSEs, Cambridge Nationals, Cambridge Technicals, Functional Skills, Key Skills, Entry Level qualifications, NVQs and vocational qualifications in areas such as IT, business, languages, teaching/training, administration and secretarial skills.

It is also responsible for developing new specifications to meet national requirements and the needs of students and teachers. OCR is a not-for-profit organisation; any surplus made is invested back into the establishment to help towards the development of qualifications and support, which keep pace with the changing needs of today's society.

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and students, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which marks were awarded by examiners. It does not indicate the details of the discussions which took place at an examiners' meeting before marking commenced.

All examiners are instructed that alternative correct answers and unexpected approaches in candidates' scripts must be given marks that fairly reflect the relevant knowledge and skills demonstrated.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the published question papers and the report on the examination.

OCR will not enter into any discussion or correspondence in connection with this mark scheme.

Subject-specific Marking InstructionsSpecific points

Half marks must never be used.

Do not transfer marks from one part of a question to another. All questions, and sub-questions, are marked separately.

Mark what the candidate has written, do not assume that the candidate knows something unless they have written it.

Depending on the objective being assessed the levels of response start with one from the following list of flag words:

AO1 Weak, Satisfactory, Good

AO2 Weak, Limited, Competent, Good

During the standardisation process, examples of work at each level will be used to define the meaning of these flag words for the examination. In particular the word good must not be interpreted as the best possible response. It will be what is judged to be although better responses could be offered.

Remember that we are trying to achieve two things in the marking of the scripts:

- (i) to place all the candidates in the correct rank order
- (ii) to use the full range of marks available – right up to the top of the range; ‘Good’ means a good response from a GCSE candidate and can therefore be awarded the highest marks.

This means that it is imperative you mark to the agreed standard.

Written Communication, Spelling, Punctuation and Grammar

Written communication covers: clarity of expression, structure of arguments, presentation of ideas, grammar, vocabulary, punctuation and spelling.

In the marking of these questions the quality of the candidate's written communication will be one factor (other factors include the relevance and amount of supporting detail) that influences whether an answer is placed at the bottom, the middle, or the top, of a level.

The following points should be remembered:

- answers are placed in the appropriate level according to the RS assessment objectives, ie no reference is made at this stage to the quality of the written communication;
- when answers have been placed into the appropriate level, examiners should then consider quality of written communication in the placing of the answer towards the top or bottom of the level;
- the quality of written communication must never be used to move an answer from the mark band of one level to another.

SPaG is now assessed in part(e) of each question. Please refer to the grid below when awarding the SPaG marks.

Spelling, punctuation and grammar (SPaG) Assessment Grid

High performance 3 marks
Candidates spell, punctuate and use rules of grammar with consistent accuracy and effective control of meaning in the context of the demands of the question. Where required, they use a wide range of specialist terms adeptly and with precision.
Intermediate performance 2 marks
Candidates spell, punctuate and use rules of grammar with considerable accuracy and general control of meaning in the context of the demands of the question. Where required, they use a good range of specialist terms with facility.
Threshold performance 1 mark
Candidates spell, punctuate and use rules of grammar with reasonable accuracy in the context of the demands of the question. Any errors do not hinder meaning in the response. Where required, they use a limited range of specialist terms appropriately.

(e)	Examiners should mark according to the AO2 descriptors. Candidates might consider some of the following: Candidates may begin by exploring the idea of this kind of obligation. They may say that if one belongs to a community then it is important that they bear witness to the important aspects of that community and for Roman Catholics Sunday Mass attendance is central to that witness. Others may explore the idea that spiritual exercise is as important as physical exercise and that regular attendance at religious occasions such as Sunday mass is important for spiritual development. Some may suggest that in our modern world where Sunday has become, for many, a working day like any other and Mass attendance is a luxury which they can no longer afford. Others may take the line that some clergy are out of touch with young people today and that they have nothing relevant to say to them so they feel no need to sit through what they consider an intrinsically boring service.	12

(d)	Examiners should mark according to the AO1 descriptors. Candidates might consider some of the following: Candidates may begin with a description of Roman Catholic beliefs about eternal life and the emphasis put on these by the funeral rites. Others may begin by discussing the need for the bereaved to be comforted and the role of funeral rites in this context. The importance of aspects such as the eulogy in leaving positive and happy memories in the mourners minds. Candidates may also discuss the support found in family and friends coming together for this service. Some may also be aware of the change from the priest wearing black to wearing white for this rite to emphasis the idea of the resurrection and the celebration of the person's life.	6	The emphasis is on is the funeral rites which this question expects as the focus of the answer.
(e)	Examiners should mark according to the AO2 descriptors. Candidates might consider some of the following: Candidates may begin by suggesting that the question contains a false dichotomy. They may suggest both that looking after the living and treating the dead with respect are not mutually exclusive. Some may suggest that funerals do not have to be expensive and that a wide variety of different ways of burying are on offer these days. Others may agree with the sentiment in the question and say that if money is an issue for people then expensive rites are inappropriate. They may argue that the rites make no practical difference to the deceased and that the living may be in more need. Some may suggest that in fact the living, being the ones who need the support, may in fact benefit more from the funerals, expensive or otherwise.	12

(d)	Examiners should mark according to the AO1 descriptors. Candidates might consider some of the following: Candidates may start by talking about the knowledge of Jesus' life which we can obtain from the gospels. The importance of both the way He lived His life and the His teachings as interpreted by the evangelists. Some may discuss our knowledge of the formation of the early Church through the letters of St. Paul and the Acts of the Apostles. Others may look at specific teachings from the New Testament and describe how they can be applied to Christian lives today giving standards and values by which to live. Many may compare life styles today with those at the time of Jesus and focus on how his teachings are still applicable.	6
(e)	Examiners should mark according to the AO2 descriptors. Candidates might consider some of the following: Candidates may begin by attacking the question and asking where we would find the most basic teachings of Christianity if we do not search through the bible. They may argue that the foundation of all the moral teaching of Christianity throughout the ages, including today, is found in the Bible, particularly the gospels. Others may argue that the teaching found in the bible are rooted so far in the past and in strange cultures compared with our own that there is no ground for finding a way of being a better Christian. Some may explore the idea that the best moral teaching comes from the example of other people and can never be found in a book. They may say that a book as such can never make someone a better Christian; exploring the idea that actions are more important that reading.	12
