MAPPING GUIDE

Version 1

MOVING FROM THE GCSE IN HEALTH AND SOCIAL CARE TO THE CAMBRIDGE NATIONAL IN HEALTH AND SOCIAL CARE?

At OCR we want to make your transition as painless as possible

Moving from the GCSE single award will mean that you are familiar with unit A911 and A912, to offer a similar sized qualification the Cambridge National Certificate in Health and Social Care is the perfect choice.

In addition to the two mandatory units, R021 - Essential values of care with individuals in care settings, R022 - Communicating and working with individuals in health, social care and early years settings, by selecting optional units R024 - Pathways for providing care in health, social care and early year's settings, and, R025 - Understanding life stages. You will find that you only have to become familiar with only limited new material for future cohorts of students. Much of your existing teaching material transfers directly into the Cambridge National.

Topics such as the needs of major client groups, access to services and the principles of care are all familiar to you and you will continue to teach them in the Cambridge National.

When delivering the Cambridge National you will find that the format of assessment will change, whilst the GCSE has only a single exam and a controlled assessment unit, the Cambridge National has four units, one which is externally assessed and three of which are internally assessed and externally moderated. In the GCSE the exam accounts of 40% of the total exam marks, in the Cambridge National all units are equally weighted, at 25% each.

The GCSE has one unit of controlled assessment, where as in the Cambridge National the remaining three unit's assessments are externally set, internally marked and externally moderated.
