RELIGIOUS STUDIES QUALIFICATIONS

Summary Brochure

Our qualifications for 14–19 year olds aim to bring Religious Studies to life and engage your students by relating the religions they study to real-world issues.
Religious Studies teachers know that this subject can be a real source of interest and inspiration. We've carefully designed our specifications to encourage your students to learn about world religions, engage in topical issues and consider major issues that are relevant to them.

We've also created teacher-friendly specifications with simple, clear assessment structures, backed by support services designed to help you at every stage from preparation to delivery.

GCSE (9–1) RELIGIOUS STUDIES
(SHORT COURSE)

THE QUALIFICATION
The content for our GCSE Religious Studies short course is half the content of the GCSE full course. Engaging and stimulating, it enables your students to learn about beliefs and teachings in relation to two religions (from a choice of Christianity, Islam and Judaism) and two different themes – exploring religious, philosophical and ethical studies in the modern world.

The specification encourages students to develop their knowledge and understanding of religious beliefs, teachings and sources of wisdom and authority, including through their reading of key religious texts, other texts, and scriptures of the religions they’re studying. They also consider the influence of religion on individuals, communities and societies, and study non-religious beliefs such as atheism and humanism.

They engage with questions of meaning, purpose, truth, and their influence on human life. They also reflect on and develop their own values, beliefs and attitudes in the light of what they’ve learnt, and this contributes to their preparation for adult life in a pluralistic society and global community.

ASSESSMENT
This is a straightforward specification with a clear and balanced structure. Students take one paper – Religion, philosophy and ethics in the modern world.

This 2-hour written paper is split into three sections:
Section A – Beliefs and teachings – 60 marks*
Section B – Relationships and families – 30 marks
Section C – Dialogue between religious and non-religious beliefs and attitudes – 30 marks

*6 additional marks will be available for spelling, punctuation and grammar and the use of specialist terminology (SPaG) in Section A. See Section 3f of the specification for more details.

THE QUALIFICATION
Our GCSE in Religious Studies encourages your students to learn more about world religions, philosophy and ethics. The specification includes inspiring content exploring relationships and families, peace and conflict, belief in God, non-religious belief and more.

There’s the opportunity for them to gain a deeper understanding of two religions (from a choice of Christianity, Islam, Judaism, Buddhism and Hinduism) and explore philosophy and ethical studies in the modern world from a religious perspective.

They learn how to engage in debate and discussion about life in a modern pluralistic society. They’re also encouraged to develop and understand personal values and beliefs, with an emphasis on critical analysis and on being able to construct balanced and informed arguments within the context of religious, philosophical and ethical awareness.

It’s a straightforward yet flexible specification with a balanced structure that offers combinations of study. It contains clear, detailed and stimulating content to allow you to enthuse your students while being confident that you’re preparing them for assessment to the depth and detail required.

ASSESSMENT
Students take two components from Component Group 1 and one component from Component Group 2. These are examined in three written papers.

Component Group 1
The study of a first religion

Component Group 1
The study of a second religion

Component Group 2
Religion, philosophy and ethics in the modern world from a religious perspective (from the perspective of one of the religions chosen for Component Group 1)

More students take A Level Religious Studies with OCR than with any other awarding organisation in England (2014 entry data/JCQ data).

Our AS and A Level specifications include exciting content exploring world religions, ethical issues and debates, and philosophical issues and questions raised by religion and belief.

We carefully selected the material for our AS and A Level to retain popular areas, but also make use of the wide variety of ideas and topics available. For example, we give students the opportunity to study Plato and Aristotle as well as the important, highly relevant issues raised in Business Ethics.

Our specifications aim to give students a really good grounding in the beliefs and practices of a chosen religion, but also reflect contemporary concerns and the ‘big issues’ in the faiths today.

The opportunity for your students to apply their knowledge and skills to contemporary issues creates an up-to-date and thoroughly relevant course.

The Russell Group of top universities has made it clear that Religious Studies A Level provides ‘suitable preparation for university generally’.

Both the AS and the A Level have a simple, clear assessment structure that consists of two written examinations.

Students study three components:
- Philosophy of religion (01)
- Religion and ethics (02)
- Developments in religious thought (03–07).

All three have clear and well-defined content and strong supporting materials.

While components 01 and 02 are mandatory, the third is chosen from the five options: Christianity (03), Islam (04), Judaism (05), Buddhism (06) or Hinduism (07).
