Introduction

The OCR Level 3 Diploma in Policing is a work-related, credit based qualification, suitable for those who have current real work experience in a police force. It is open to candidates of any age, of either gender and there are no entry barriers on grounds of race, creed or previous academic attainment or learning.

It is designed to reflect the work of serving police officers from their initial period as student officers to independent patrol. It will also be useful as they gain experience and proficiency in a variety of fields.

The units that make up this qualification have been developed from the National Occupational Standards. They describe the level and breadth of performance expected of every officer in the core of basic policing duties and will provide a nationally accredited focus for Police training and individual officer's personal development activity.

The qualification has been nationally accredited into the Qualifications and Credit Framework (QCF).

Target Audience

The OCR Level 3 Diploma in Policing has been designed for the uniformed officer during the initial period of service. Student Officers will have the opportunity to work towards it during the probationary period and knowledge aspects of the assessment will often be completed during their classroom phase. It covers basic policing duties but more experienced officers may also find it useful as a focus for development activity and the opportunity to demonstrate personal competence in the basic duty arena.

Qualification content

To achieve a full OCR Level 3 Diploma in Policing, candidates must gain 38 credits from the achievement of ten mandatory units, as shown in the following table.

If a candidate has achieved any credits in these units through another Awarding Body, OCR will accept the unit certificates issued by that body. Candidates should supply their original unit certificates, showing the credit achieved to claim a full qualification. Only credit from units with the same accreditation reference number can be accepted towards these qualifications.

Assessment

The OCR Level 3 Diploma in Policing is competence-based. This means that it is used to assess an officer's ability to competently perform a range of tasks connected with their work. To gain this qualification the candidate must demonstrate their competence to the level described in the units.

Assessment of candidate competence will be carried out in the workplace by trained assessors and the quality of this assessment is confirmed by trained internal verifiers. OCR will monitor the quality of each centre's operations during visits from the policing external verification team.

To achieve this qualification each candidate must prove that they can consistently and competently meet the Assessment Criteria listed for each Learning Outcome and meet all Assessment Requirements.

Knowledge elements for many of the units should normally be demonstrated in a learning and development environment prior to application in the workplace. Each unit contains specific requirements for the assessment of competence in the workplace.
